FROM COACHVILLE

Clients hiring you for personal coaching are hiring you and your life as much as they are hiring your coaching proficiencies and knowledge base.

© 2002 by coachville.com. license required for use.

This, because personal clients often like or respect certain qualities, traits, skills or even lifestyles that coaches have and this adds value to their coaching; just by you being yourself. (This cannot be overstated.)

So, along that line, here are photos of coaches with links to the personal pages of their websites. These photo tell a story all by themselves and assist to attracting the most fitting/matching clients.

Enjoy!

"I can get to the bottom of a parenting situation and teach you how to do the same."

Pavla Michaela Polcarova

<http://www.cprcoaching.com/about/pavla.html>

Thomas' favorite line/quote at her site.

"Pavla was born in communist Czechoslovakia, where she started her first entrepreneurial venture as a teenager by running a successful fashion design business on the country's black market. She escaped Czechoslovakia through the Yugoslavian Alps into Austria at the age of 16, spending a few days in an Austrian jail and six months in an Austrian refugee camp. Her mother and Pavla started a new life in freedom with no possessions and minimal knowledge of English. This experience, along with the observations of others undergoing this same situation, has given Pavla valuable first-hand understanding of risk taking, managing change, uncertainty, and the challenges of dealing with people under great levels of stress - not unlike those experienced by people within organizations undergoing growth, restructuring, or market uncertainties."

SKYDIVER: I celebrated my fiftieth birthday skydiving with my daughter.

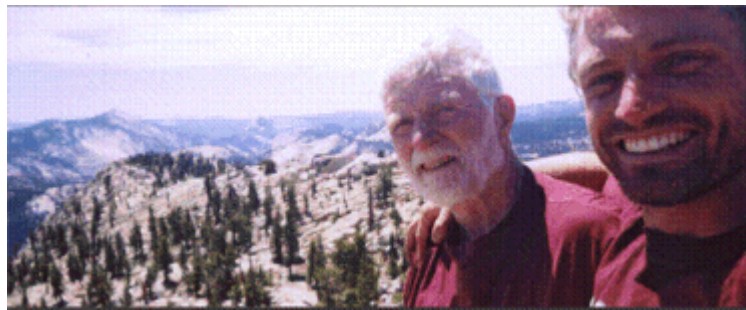

Welcome! I'm Beth Netter. M.D. I used to practice medicine and now I get to champion personal growth as a lifecoach. I use my integrity, experience and humor to provide a safe and judgement-free space for learning and forward action on any goals or choices you have. A coach is that special person in your life who holds up a mirror that reflects back your best possible you.

"This is one of the most magic moments in my life. It's August 17, 2001 and my son and I have just climbed to the top of Polly Dome in Yosemite. We started at about 8500 feet and have climbed to 9800 – above 30% of the world's oxygen, and 95% of the world's population! "

Okay, one of me, too...
